Some highlights from the past month:

- The digital sign at the library’s driveway is now in! It’s very simple to operate, and we couldn’t be happier with it.

Continuing:

- The Libraries Transform Communities Facilitator co-hort with ALA and ARSL is coming to a close. Jenna is working with Noble New Way to apply for the $3,000 grant offered for community conversations. This partnership between Noble New Way and KPL benefits both organizations, and this grant will allow us develop new programs and services based on community connection, which will in turn help our community thrive.
- Implementation of OrangeBoy should be wrapped up soon. When it’s ready to go, the first things we will do are set up Subscription Center to begin running our messaging campaigns, and then send out a satisfaction survey to all of our cardholders.

Coming up:

- Plans to launch the website by April 1 are underway. The site is about 90% built, but features and links will need to be checked for functionality. Anyone want to help with that?
- The first segment of the library staff annual training will begin later this month. Staff will be focusing on Circulation and Open/Closing Procedures.
